FATE AND A COW.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Professor Slocum of the college at Madison was fifty years old on a certain date. He was tall and stoop shouldered and ungainly. He was reticent and uncommunicative, and society knew him not at all. Miss Deborah Day of the same town had reached the age of forty-five. She was plain of face and frigid of attitude, and her charms were missing. Cupid had sized up the professor and condemned him to bachelorhood. He had done the same with Miss Deborah and left her an old maid.

One evening, just at sundown, when the whippoorwill, and there was any within a radius of a hundred miles, would have been making ready to sing, Miss Day walked forth in a meadow to gather a few daisies. It was not a romantic feeling that took her there. She would have as soon culled onions had there been any there to cull. At the same hour it singularly happened that Professor Slocum sought the same meadow in search of geological specimens to convince his class that this old earth of ours has seen at least 15-000,000 birthdays come and go. Four discoveries took place almost simultaneously, and a fifth came tagging on behind. The lady discovered her daisies, the professor discovered his pebbles, the two people discovered each other, and together they discovered a cow. A cow may be simply an animated object on the landscape, or she may be a discovery, because she was entraged over the loss of a horn knocked off in some way and because she had her head down and her tail up and was charging the pebble and daisy gatherers.

Then the fifth discovery showed up.
It was a cow shed twenty rods away.
—A rough affair that had once seen better days. The meadow was retired, and the shed was more so. There was no hope of reaching the fence, but there was of reaching the shed. It was plain that the cow was coming for business, and you must judge whether it was proper or not for the couple to clasp hands and make a wabbly and tumultuous run for the shed. They reached it just in time for the professor to find a board and bar the entrance against the cow and later on to further strengthen it. There was no doubt about the bovine being in earnest. She made frantic attempts to tear down the shed with her remaining horn, and when she could not effect entrance she stood on guard to keep her victims from coming out.
Darkness suddenly fell.

"Professor Slocum, I must leave here this instant!" exclaimed the horrified Miss Day.

"And so must I," was the reply.

"It is not proper."

"Certainly not."

"I shall be a laughingstock."

"And I the same."

Yes; they ought to leave the shed and rush in opposite directions, but what of the cow? She proposed to have something to say about that. At the first movement of the temporary door she uttered a bloodcurdling howl and made a charge, and Miss Day screamed, and the professor threw up his hands in despair.

"I can't go, but you must," said Miss Day as the cow quivered down. "Professor, you must see that you must go —you must see it!"

"I do see it," he replied, "and, while I cannot depart from the shed, I can climb out on top of it!"

This he accomplished by making his way through a gap in the roof. He was now in a position of propriety, but there was the cow again. When she saw him perched up there, so near and yet so far, she tried to climb up after him, and at the end of two minutes Miss Day was shrieking for protection.
Down scrambled the professor, and the cow took to running around the shed to find where he had gone.

Could they be severely ceremonious when it was impossible to see each other? The professor wisely decided that they couldn't, and he reached out and clasped Miss Day's hand. She returned the clasp. Then he put his arm around her in a protecting way, and she did not shrink. Then the old cow made up her mind to melt the frost and bring out the turpitudes if she had to break her neck to do it. She gave a bellow of warning and retreated eight or ten rods and then came for the side of the shed like a runaway locomotive. She hit it fair and square, and two-thirds of it caved in like a house of sand. In the caving she was mixed up with beams and boards, and the professor took advantage of the occasion to tear the door aside and pull his companion out into the open. They ran for the nearest fence. It wasn't difficult to fall down three or four times, but they fell. It wasn't unusually proper when the fence was reached and the cow was hard on their trail for the professor to throw Miss Day over and then make a scramble himself, but that's the way it was worked. Then as soon as the man in the case could get his breath he realized the inevitable. They were both tattered and fretted. They had together passed through peril by flood and fire (and cow), and romance had come to their hearts at last.

"Miss Day, I have loved you from the first," announced the professor as he took her hand.

"And I—I," she replied after gasping for breath.

Of course she had, too, and of course that settled it then and there. The old cow looked through the rails at them, heard the cooing of the doves and with a snort of disgust turned tail and walked away. And yet she had made over two human beings to be like the average.

ABOUT THE STATE

Howard Butts of Moscow slipped Monday on an icy sidewalk and fell, breaking two ribs.

Curtis Clark of East Moretown had part of one thumb bitten off by a hog one day last week.

Owing to low water, the granite sheds at Hardwick are short of power and many men are laid off.

Rev. F. Janvier has resigned his pastorate at Timonh and will stay in Albany, N. Y., where he is studying medicine.

Miss Glenn Casavant of Enosburg Falls, was caught by the hand in the machinery of a filling machine at the condensary Monday and the flesh was badly lacerated requiring a number of stitches to close the wound.

Norman Peck of West Rutland had one arm injured while at work on the new road in Clarendon. He was holding a large wheel scraper, when it struck a ledge, throwing him some distance. He struck on his right arm.

Hon. Samuel E. Pingree of White River Junction is present at Windsor county convention, it being the 101st time he has attended. He was admitted to the bar at the December term of 1889 and, with the exception of the years spent in the army, has missed the opening day of court only a few times.

While Thomas Dewitt of Brandon was driving down the street one day last week, his horse, which was smooth shod, fell on the ice, breaking one of its hips.
It was necessary to shoot the animal.
This was the second horse Dewitt has lost within a month, the other one getting injured by falling through a shine-way, so that it had to be killed. The town of Brandon paid him $200 for the loss of the first one.

The Windsor village lock-up, which acts near the railroad track, has been taken possession of by hoboes for light housekeeping purposes. A newspaper man was piloted to the place the other night by a railroad engineer and inside all the beds but one were found occupied by slumbering tramps, who had built a cheerful fire in the box stove, eaten their evening meal at the corridor table and turned in for the night.

Notices have been sent out from the post office department that the following countries refuse to admit to their mails articles bearing non-postal character, such as: Great Britain, Orange River Colony, Rhodesia of the South, Transvaal. Germany admits articles bearing such stamps, if affixed to the back, but not when attached to the face.
Articles liable to be refused admittance to any of the foregoing countries must be clearly marked with stamps will be returned to the sender if known, but if the sender be not known, such articles will be sent to the dead letter office.

The Rockingham free public library of Bellefleur Falls was dedicated Thanksgiving day. The building is the gift of Andrew Carnegie. It is well equipped, on a beautiful spot overlooking the Connecticut river. Twenty-one citizens, including the ministers of six denominations, president of the women's club, educators, professional men and business men, were asked to speak; the State Library association was represented by its president, Miss Pierce, and the board of library commissioners by a member. The Hon.
A. N. Swain gave the historical address and presided at the meeting, introducing the speakers. The library contains about 1,200 volumes, and has lately received many gifts of pictures and objects of local interest.

The museum at St. Johnsbury has received a most interesting article for the historical collection, which is an old wagon made by Sir Thaddeus Fairbanks in the early part of the nineteenth century, probably before the scale industry was started. The vehicle is made in the style frequently found in the northwestern states, where roads are rough. The wheels are of good size, with unusually large hubs, and the body, which is without springs, is boat-shaped, and into this the wagon seat is fastened by means of two wooden bars in front. On one of these bars is a peg, around which the reins were fastened. There was a dasher and the whip was laid in the bottom of the wagon. The wagon was purchased from Sir Thaddeus Fairbanks by Chauncey Spaulding, one of the first settlers in the Spaulding neighborhood.

An Authority on Wireless Telegraphy.

Edmond Burke Moore, a native of Springfield, Vt., now a sophomore in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has been working along the line of wireless telegraphy research for the past six years, has published a number of articles in leading engineering magazines on the subject, and is president of the Technology Wireless society. He has a station on the roof of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house which will receive messages from a distance of 80 miles and will transmit them a distance of 60 miles. A detector of his own design has been installed there. At the age of 18 years he published a book on "Wire and Wireless Telegraphy," of which the first edition of 1,000 copies was exhausted in a few weeks. In about a year another book, on which he is now working, will be published, and will contain a list of the results of his experiments he has made, covering a period of five years.
In his work he has secured the co-operation of the navy yard at Charlestown, Mass., and the heads of all the large wireless concerns in the vicinity, on account of his desire to help out the study of wireless telegraphy without interfering with other people's messages.

MORE FEDERAL FIGURES GIVEN

Total Estimates for Next Year $978,125,769

THE LAST APPROPRIATIONS

Were $1,022,332,001—Reduction in the Amount Asked Is $60,000,000—It Falls Below That Given by Congress by $45,000,000.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Thomas P.

Cleaves and James C. Courtis, clerks, respectively, of the Senate and House committees on appropriations, have issued their annual comparisons of estimates for appropriations for the next year, as compared with the appropriations made last year, and also, as compared with the estimates for last year's appropriations.
The figures are given by bills and show a total estimate for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, of $978,125,769, as compared with a total appropriation in the last session of $1,022,332,001, and total estimates of that session for $1-088,387,509. The estimate is more than $80,000,000 less than that of the previous session and almost $45,000,000 less than the actual appropriations of that session. Comparing the estimates for this session with the appropriations of that, the principal falling off is an excess of $60,000,000 in the army appropriation, more than $10,000,000 in the navy, exceeding $5,000,000 for pensions and something over $1,000,000 on the sundry civil bill. The post office department calls for an increase of about $9,000,000 and an expenditure of $2,942,247 is suggested on account of rivers and harbors.

C. P. SEES THE WHITE HOUSE.

Possibly He Talks About Ohio Politics.

Washington, Dec. 9.—President Taft is entertaining as guests at the White House his brother, Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati; former Governor Myron T.
Herriot of Ohio, and his brother-in-law, Thomas K. Laughlin of Pittsburgh. The President personally showed his brother through the executive offices yesterday morning, explaining proudly the many improvements made during the summer.
The presence of C. P. Taft and Mr. Herriot has suggested a political conference regarding affairs in Ohio, but no statement as to any matter under consideration could be secured.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a roughish which-despite the most beneficent environment of soil and sunshine—and of atmosphere seemed never to achieve a healthy growth?

A lot of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vasoline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the germ, and restores the hair to its normal condition.
